

Dream Job, BBC Scotland, Computer games designer Sophia George May 2015

Girl 1: I'd like to be an animator or a vet, and I think I'd like to be an animator because I like drawing and doing art, or a vet because I like animals.

Boy 1: My dream job is to be history teacher.

Girl 2: My dream jobs are to be like an artist, a visual development artist ... I did prior research... I'd also like to be a professional ladies footballer.

Bryan Burnett: Hullo, I am Brian Barnett. Now, we all love playing computer games, but how good would it be to invent your own game? Well, our guest today knows exactly what that feels like. Sophia George may be only in her early twenties, she's already made her mark in the games industry, she's won several awards and has formed her own company... but how did she do it? Do you think you've got what it takes to come up with a computer game of your own? It sounds like a dream job, doesn't it? Getting paid to play games. Sophia, welcome to the program. Is that a dream job?

Sophia George: I definitely is a dream job. I've always loved computer games when I was growing up so ... getting to actually make them with other people is just so much fun. It's hard work but I love it!
